

Annual Meeting of the LAC

The Library Association of China (LAC) held its 46th annual meeting at the NCL on December 4. The opening ceremony was presided by Prof. Shih-hsiung Huang (黃世雄) and featured a keynote speech by Dr. Hwa-wei Lee (李華偉), the recently retired director of the Ohio University Library. Dr. Lee spoke on the topic "Library Cooperation and Resource Sharing in a Network Environment." An awards ceremony followed, during which association members were recognized for special contribution, social service, and long and distinguished duty. The association also awarded scholarships to 42 outstanding library and information science majors.

On the occasion of Library Week, held during first week of December, libraries across Taiwan held a number of promotional activities. This year's slogan, "Knowledge is Not Just for Collecting, Navigate the Information Millenium," was selected among several competition entries and announced at the LAC meeting.

Another order of business at the meeting was the appointment of the LAC's new administrative and supervisory committees, bringing in 33 and 21 new faces, respectively. Prof. Shih-hsiung Huang was nominated as the new chairman.
