

REVIEW

■ 2004 ROC Library Yearbook

The NCL's 2004 ROC Library Yearbook hit the presses in February 2005, chronicling the major affairs, events and information of Taiwan's library world in 2003. The yearbook is divided into four sections, including reprinted material, special reports, special topics, and an appendix, as detailed below. There is also an index at the end of the yearbook to help readers find information of interest.

1. Reprinted Material: This section includes speeches presented by President Chen Shui-bian on the 70th anniversary of the NCL and the launch ceremony for the Taiwan Memory and Taiwan Info websites.
2. Special Reports: This section focuses on the "Public Library Development Plan," including the implementation status and results of the five sub-plans under the program, namely the Public Library Space and Operations Improvement Plan; Public Library Automation and Network Establishment Plan; Network Content Resource Center; Public Library Online Procurement Mechanism Plan; and Public Library Collection Development Plan.
3. Special Topics: This section contains categorized columns on various topics, including an overview of library operations in the Taiwan area, as well as developments in collection resources, services, and applications of information technology at libraries of various levels. Also covered are automation and digitalization at public libraries at the city/county level or higher and university/college libraries; a chronology of major library and information organization events; library conferences and exchanges; library and information (LIS) education and results of related research on archival studies over the past five years; photos of library participation in the National Digital Archive Program and annual activities; and library statistics and regulations/laws.

4. Appendix: Includes a directory of libraries and LIS programs in Taiwan, and a directory of commercial and law libraries.
